EQ: What were the causes and effects of the Korean Conflict?

Key words	Summary
Korea Divided WWII Communist	After World War II ended, Korea was divided into North and South Korea. North Korea set up a communist government.
North Korea South Korea Invade Communism United States China / Soviet Union	In 1950, North Korea invaded South Korea with the goal of uniting the two countries with communism. The United States, supported by the UN (United Nations), sent soldiers to help South Korea. China and the Soviet Union supported North Korea.
Border Divided North Korea South Korea Democratic Communist	The conflict was a stalemate, and a border was set up that divided North Korea and South Korea. North Korea remained a communist nation, and South Korea remained a democratic nation.

Answer the EQ in a minimum of 3 complete sentences

The cause of the Korean Conflict was because North Korea wanted to unite the peninsula of Korea under a communist nation. The effect was a stalemate where both countries remained separate and divided. North Korea remained under a communist government, while South Korea remained under a democratic government.

Cold War (Video 5 notes)